

About NISHIKAWA Co., Ltd.

In 1566, Niemon, the founder of Nishikawa, opened a mosquito net and daily necessities retail business in Omi, an area near Kyoto. Nishikawa has been selling bedding since 1887, and by continuing to innovate products and services, it has earned the longest history as a pioneer of bedding in Japan, a high level of recognition and trust, and market share as a specialized supplier.

In 1984, Nishikawa established Japan Research Laboratory of Sleep Science to conduct joint research with universities and other research institutions, the results of which are utilized in product development. As a leader in Japan's bedding industry, Nishikawa is committed to uncompromising manufacturing through its own and affiliated factories in Japan and abroad, and its products are sold through 10,000 stores throughout Japan with a retail value base of over 100 billion yen (approx. US$0.7 billion). Overseas business has so far expanded its sales bases mainly in Asia, and is also focusing on e-commerce. Nishikawa plans to grow our business in the U.S. as a pillar of our overseas business in the future. Nishikawa intends to use this expansion into the U.S. as a foothold for further overseas development and to provide Nishikawa's long-cultivated sleep solutions to the rest of the world.
