

Naoki Yasuba, Representative Director:

Dedicated to embedding sustainability at the heart of our operations, we have consistently cultivated an array of initiatives. As of April 1, our company has rebranded to Nagase Viita, symbolizing “symbiosis and co-creation,” marking the beginning of our journey guided by our corporate purpose: Respect life, and embrace the well-being of people and the planet. We are immensely honored to have received the highest accolade from an esteemed international sustainability assessment body at this pivotal moment. This recognition not only signifies a remarkable milestone in our new beginning but also serves as a profound source of motivation propelling us forward.

Atsufumi Yokoi, Okayama University Senior Vice President and UNESCO Chairholder:

I have had the privilege of supporting Nagase Viita’s endeavors as an external advisor (SDGs advisor) for four years.

From the outset, our dedication has centered on the ethos of “from the local community to the world,” emphasizing sustainability management and the creation of new value with societal impact. This achievement reflects the collective efforts of the management team and every individual within the organization, as we deepen our comprehension of this fundamental concept and champion numerous glocal initiatives as a unified entity.