More Languages Made Available in the Fuji Xerox Scan Translation Service

The Cloud Service Now Also Covers Vietnamese, Indonesian and Malay

TOKYO, October 20, 2015 – To meet business needs in a global context, Fuji Xerox Co., Ltd. today launches Scan Translation Service^{*1}, with enhanced functions as well as additional available languages; Vietnamese, Indonesian and Malay.

Enabling quick understanding of documents in foreign languages, the Scan Translation Service facilitates global communications by streamlining the translation process when users simply need to grasp the gist of a document written in a foreign language to determine its importance or urgency, or to facilitate communications between people who speak different languages.

Previously, translations into languages other than Japanese or English needed to be processed through these languages, but users can now directly translate documents from Thai to other languages, and vice versa.

Further, to increase business efficiency and convenience, it is now possible to specify a page to translate within an electronic document file^{*2}. This eliminates the necessity of dividing a file into multiple files to translate certain pages only in the file, reducing time for processing. Also, the translation process can now be canceled in the middle of the translation^{*2}, and the translation fee is charged up to the page where the translation was carried out, preventing unwanted charges that could be caused by operational errors.

The Fuji Xerox Scan Translation Service had the honor of receiving the Best Overseas Development Prize in the 9th ASPIC Cloud Awards 2015, sponsored by the ASP-SaaS-Cloud Consortium (ASPIC) in recognition of Fuji Xerox's service expansion overseas^{*3}. The ASPIC Cloud Awards are given for excellent cloud services and data centers in Japan, as well as enterprises that utilize those services. This year's award marks Fuji Xerox's second achievement, following the ASPIC Chairman's Prize received in 2014.

*1: As the service is based on machine translation, the translation may not be as accurate as some users require. However, translation accuracy can be improved by adding dictionaries, and it is also recommended to customize the dictionaries.

*2: Excluding MS-Office Word documents (docx and docm).

*3: Service areas: South Korea, Taiwan, Hong Kong, the Philippines, Thailand, Malaysia, Singapore, and New Zealand.
